NICARAGUAN REBELS COWED MARINES NOW HOLD CAPITAL

America Takes Sides With Diaz--Will Uphold His Government Against Insurrectionists Who Are Evidently Backed By the Mexican Government--Embargo On Arms Lifted--Troops Landed To Uphold Government Says Secretary of State Kellogg.

Swift and startling turns in the crisis of Nicaragua, Mexico and China Wednesday brought the United States face to face with the most serious foreign situation in years. These were the developments:

1. Secretary Frank B. Kellogg was asked to appear before the Senate Foreign Relations committee to explain the Nicaraguan policy.

2. State department announced that marines have been ordered to occupy Managua, capital of Nicaragua and stronghold of President Diaz, thus saving the city from threatened capture by rebel forces. A force of 60 were disembarked from U. S. S. Galveston at Corinti and began entraining for Managua.

3. Embargo upon arms to the Diaz government lifted and Admiral Latorre ordered to prevent delivery of arms and supply at Puerto Cabeza and Rio Grande bar to revolutionary forces.

4. President P. Elias Calles of Mexico orders judicial proceedings against foreign properties which have not complied with new petroleum laws. The regarded action was to be the first step toward confiscation.

5. Anti-foreign situation in China is most serious since Boxer Rebellion. More than 300 Americans are imprisoned at Hankow.

6. Five American destroyers are on their way from Manila to Shanghai and eight destroyers and gunboats, stripped for action, are near Hankow to protect Americans.

The move to place marines in Managua and declare that city to be a neutral zone and the removal of the arms embargo to the Diaz government in Nicaragua was regarded to be a drastic move to save Diaz in the nick of time from disaster. It constituted a complete reversal of the "neutral" Nicaraguan policy.

The veering in the policy took place at the time that the senate, disturbed over the grave consequences that might grow out of the Nicaraguan imbroglio, determined to give a thorough airing to the Latin-American policy of the state department.

With the arms embargo lifted, the United States, backing President Diaz definitely is pitted against Mexico, which is backing Sacasa, the thus far victorious rebel leader.

As the first step, Secretary Kellogg was requested to appear before the senate foreign relations committee at his earliest convenience to make a statement regarding the attitude of the state department and the situation in Nicaragua and in Mexico.

The marines for Managua, which have been landed on the west coast, will be rushed overland to the city, against which the Sacasa forces are converging. They will be established as a "Legation Guard" and will constitute a virtual protectorate over Diaz.

The state department announced that the American minister at Managua has been informed by the British and Italian Charges D'Affaires there that they considered their subjects in imminent peril without protection by American marines. These representatives were regarded in the senate to be likely to bring up the question of the Monroe Doctrine, but Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, nailed them as "propaganda." "The propaganda being put out that the Monroe Doctrine has application to the Nicaraguan and Mexican situations has no foundation in fact," Senator Borah said in a formal statement. "The Monroe Doctrine has no relation to the questions involved."

"No European government, no non-American government, is interfering in Nicaragua or Mexico or professing to do so."

"In Nicaragua the revolution is being carried on by those who claim that Sacasa is the constitutional president and is purely an internal affair."

"In Mexico it is a question relative to oil. The British oil interests or companies seem willing to comply with the Mexican laws. Under no conceivable theory can the Monroe Doctrine have any application."

Occupation of Managua by marines was declared by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, to be additional reason for the adoption of his resolution calling upon the administration to withdraw at once all American forces from Nicaragua.

"This action shows the hypocrisy of the White House spokesman who said a few days ago that our forces were in Nicaragua merely to protect American lives and property, and that we were not going to take sides in the controversy," declared Senator Wheeler.

"It is all too evident that the marines have been ordered into Managua to keep the revolution from succeeding. The White House spokesman further convicted himself of hypocrisy in shifting his attitude by now claiming we have our marines there to protect the proposed Nicaraguan canal. Nothing could be more absurd, for the canal does not exist and its proposed route is nowhere near where our marines are stationed."

While the Nicaraguan controversy continued to reverberate, the administration was faced with a more acute crisis in the anti-foreign outbreak at Hankow, China. Hundreds of Americans are in the zone of the fighting.

Every available ship in being rushed to stations for the protection of American lives and property in the face of a fanatical uprising of Chinese Nationalists.

Communication with American consular agents there is slow, but the state department admitted that the situation has graver possibilities than at any time since the Boxer rebellion. The only comment was that American naval officers have orders to protect the lives of their nationals at all costs.

On top of these developments the Mexican embassy made public an executive order from President Calles directing the attorney-general of Mexico to prepare judicial proceedings against American properties which have not complied with the petroleum laws.

The Mexican attorney-general will check the names of all foreign concerns who have refused to register their properties under the petroleum laws by January 1, the dead line.

Such proceedings as will follow are regarded to be the first steps toward ultimate confiscation of the properties by the Mexican government.

Sight of Animals

The biological survey says that the crystalline lens varies somewhat in the eyes of different mammals. Magnification of the object may sometimes result, but it is impossible to tell the comparative impression on the retina and the optic nerve. Should man appear three times his normal size to animals, all other objects would also be magnified three times.

Put End to Slavery Under British Flag

Serfdom in England was finally abolished in 1660. For a century afterward colonists and others on a visit to England were allowed to bring their slaves with them; but by a judgment of the queen's bench, in 1772, when an attempt was made to regain possession of a fugitive slave, it was decided that no man in Great Britain could be held as a slave. An act for the abolition of slavery throughout the British colonies was passed by the British parliament, chiefly through the exertions of William Wilberforce, in 1833, and became effective on August 1, 1834. Their owners were compensated by the British government to the extent of £20,000,000 (about $97,000,000) sterling. Slavery was abolished in the East Indies, then under the control of the East India company, in 1838. Great Britain had nothing to do with slavery in South America or the United States.—Montreal Herald.

Witty Shaw

George Bernard Shaw is a fierce opponent of the stick as a device for punishment. One day he and Israel Zangwill were taking a walk, relates Jerome K. Jerome in "My Life and Times." They noticed a group of boys in a field with their heads close together. An animal's shrill cry of pain came from the center of the group. Shaw, gripping his walking stick, vaulted the gate and the boys let go their victim and ran, with Shaw in full chase. They proved too fast and Shaw returned, panting, explaining in heated language what he had intended to do if only he had overtaken them. "But I thought," said Zangwill, "that you were opposed to all physical punishment." "So I am," growled Shaw, "but I have never claimed to be consistent."

Whale Becoming Extinct

Complete extermination of the whale within five or ten years is predicted, unless the wholesale butchery of this valuable mammal can be stopped by international law. It is said that not more than 12,000 whales are left in the world, and that the whaling industry is literally slaughtering in excess of 2,000 each year.—Thrill Magazine.

STUDENTS GREET JOHN COOLIDGE AND NEW GUARD

Amherst, Mass., Jan. 3.—With his youthful secret service guard accompanying him, John Coolidge returned to Amherst college today from the White House. Russell A. Wood who will guard the President's son, was the central attraction for young Coolidge's college friends upon their arrival.

It is expected that Wood will participate in the social life of the college, thus enabling the youthful celebrity to enjoy the campus life and yet be under constant guard.

Today is Mrs. Coolidge's birthday and it was John's desire to have remained at the White House for the occasion. However, the stern New England spirit of the Coolidge family overruled the boy's wishes and he returned to college to be here for the opening day of the semester.

Wonder if Uncle Sam is still paying the bill?

REMOVE SIGNS AT CROSSINGS

Automobile associations and others in the work of averting grade crossing accidents, can do no better than campaign for the prevention of advertising signs at or near railroad crossings.

There should be nothing at or near crossings likely to cause distraction.

When the driver of a vehicle is approaching a crossing, he should have his mind on that very thing, and not be reading signs or thinking of something else.

Signs are likely to attract his attention, and though only for a moment, it is at a time when he should be watching for trains and thinking of nothing else.

It is for the safety of the motor driving public that signs at crossings be removed, other than those required to indicate a railroad crossing, and auto drivers and public authorities should cooperate to effect their elimination.

Among those pardoned today is E. B. Moy, of Houston, given five to 99 years for wife murder. The governor said Moy had served the state for four years as "a good blacksmith, doing as much work as the average convict would do in 15 years," and that his wife's death was an accident.

TUNNEY IS READY TO MEET ANYONE

St. Louis, Jan. 5.—Gene Tunney believes his meeting here Thursday with Tex Rickard, promoter, will result favorably to both sides and that the scene and approximate date of his first bout in defense of the championship will be ready for announcement.

The conquerer of Jack Dempsey, fulfilling a vaudeville engagement here this week, said he was ready to meet anyone selected for him provided he is a logical contender.

Reports that Rickard was prepared to offer him $750,000 for a championship bout at the Yankee stadium next fall, however, brought forth the exclamation: "That's a lot of money when I look back and recall what I earned when I fought my first bout in Paris."

Lesson for January 9

THE STANDARD OF CHRISTIAN LIVING

LESSON TEXT—Luke 6:27-33.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus Wants Us to Live.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Marching Orders for Christians.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—What Christ Requires of Us.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—Christ's Life and Example for Us.

The context (v. 26) clearly implies what is elsewhere positively declared (John 15:18-21; Luke 21:17) that the followers of Christ will be hated and opposed. In this lesson Christ sets forth the principles governing the life of his followers.

I. "Love Your Enemies" (v. 27).
Love here is not a natural affection.
To love friends is easy, but to love enemies is only possible to those who have been made partakers of the divine nature—been born again.

II. "Do Good to Them Which Hate
You" (v. 27).

Love is positive in its nature. The true Christian will not merely refrain from doing injury to one who hates him, but will be concerned with and engaged in doing good to him. True love acts according to its own essential nature.

III. "Bless Them That Curse You"
(v. 28).

To bless means to speak well of—to invoke a blessing upon. Injury by words is hard to let go unchallenged.
The one who is a child of God and allows the Spirit of his Maker and Redeemer to express itself through him will return blessings for cursings.

IV. "Pray for Them Which Despite-fully Use You" (v. 28).

We should pray for those who abuse us. The best commentary on this precept is Christ's own example (Luke 23:34). "Father forgive them for they know not what they do."
When Christ was reviled He reviled not again. When He suffered, He threatened not, but committed Himself to Him that judgeth righteously.
(1 Pet. 2:23).

V. "Patiently Endure Wrong and Injury" (v. 29).

The Christian is not to bristle in defense of his rights but rather to suffer insult, injury and even loss. This expresses the law which should govern the individual's actions, but should not be pressed so far that evil-doers can go unchecked. Rightly constituted government has been ordained of God for the protection of the innocent and the punishment of evildoers (Rom. 13:1-8).

VI. Give to Every One That Asketh of Thee (v. 30).

God is the supreme example. He gives freely and generously but intelligently. This text does not authorize indiscriminate giving. There is a giving which injures the one to whom the gift is made. To give a man money to buy whisky would be wrong.

VII. Do as You Wish to Be Done
By (v. 31).

This is called the Golden Rule. It is the sum total of Christian duty as it pertains to human interrelations. Human beings carry with them the consciousness which is the touchstone which teaches them their duty to others. If men were to live up to this rule the problem of capital and labor would be solved and end would be put to war. International relations would be peaceably adjusted and all profitteering in business would end. Practicing this precept proves that we are children of God. Loving those who love us, doing good to those who do good to us, lending to those who lend to us, is the common practice even among sinners. No new birth, no Holy Spirit needed to live this kind of life.

VIII. Be Merciful (v. 36).

This means to be filled with pity and compassion. To enter into sympathy with every need of others. The supreme example as to this is the Heavenly Father.

IX. Censorious Judgments Condemned (v. 27).

This means that we should not seek out the evil or faults in others for our satisfaction. We should not sit in censorious judgment upon the actions of others. However, it does not prohibit the just estimation of the character of others by their deeds.

X. The Compensations of Right Living (v. 38).

The one who gives freely of money, loves sincerely, makes the Golden Rule the standard of his life, shows mercy and kindness to others, and refrains from impugning the motives of others will be fully rewarded in kind. God will see to it that there be no loss.

Discovered in a double boiler...

the secret of tempting pies, cakes and cookies

WOULD you ever think of looking in a double boiler to find the secret of baking cakes "like mother used to make"?

Yet it was in the double boiler that the secret was discovered. It's really quite simple. Cereals and other delicate foods, you know, do not scorch when cooked in a double boiler—its construction permits the heat to be distributed evenly throughout its contents.

And now, in the oven of the Estate Gas Range, this same
"double boiler" construction has been adopted. This oven, built on the two-wall, "double boiler" principle, bakes with uniform heat. There are no
"hot spots" to cause scorching, no shifting of pans, no "peeking in" necessary—pies, cakes and cookies come out symmetrical in shape and color.

Let us show you today how,
in the double boiler, the secret of successful baking was found.

SYNTHETIC "HOT DOG" CASING IS INVENTED

Makes Sausage More Edible, Chemists Say.

New York.—More edible sausages are now possible through the researches of Mellon institute chemists, who announce through the American Chemical society the invention of a synthetic sausage casing made from cellulose to replace the old-fashioned animal casing.

"The casings can be made in any desired size, and the strands can be made of any length," says the report. "The sausages packed in cellulose casings are perfectly comestible and may be cooked in any manner."

Four investigators were concerned in the researches, which began in February, 1916, and were not completed until 1926. C. L. Welch began the studies in 1916, and Frank W. Stockton took them up in 1917. William Henderson continued them from 1920 for two years alone, and he was then joined by Harold E. Dietrich.

Casings From Far Off Lands.

Casings now in general use are sheep casings from China, Russia, the Levant, New Zealand, Australia, western Europe, and South America and hog casings from native hogs or imported from China.

"Until the advent of the cellulose casing, no suitable synthetic casing had ever been devised which could satisfactorily replace the animal casing, in spite of the fact that, even with the greatest care, cleaners and graders of natural casings were unable to turn out a really clean and uniformly calibrated article or one which would be of long lengths, free from holes, weak spots, deterioration, or other defects," declares the report.

After experiments with gelatin, casein plastics, carbohydrates, and starches, the material found most satisfactory was a high grade type of purified cotton linters. It is converted into a plastic condition by the viscose process.

A machine was devised to make the casings in the laboratory, where a great deal of research was done, using many kinds of viscose and also trying various kinds of modifiers with the viscose. About 100 feet of casing from one filling could be made with the laboratory machine.

To make a considerable supply of one type of casing a unit plant was erected in a small building at the institute. Later, the casings were tried out under normal factory conditions.

It was found that the synthetic casings could be stuffed with the meat while dry, eliminating the preliminary soaking process required by ordinary casings, and that the stuffing operation could be done much more quickly with the dry casings. Immediately after stuffing the case acquires moisture from the meat filler and becomes soft and pliable.

Diameter May Be Any Size.

Drying the casings before stuffing, by surrounding the moist cases with a thin cloth tube and inflating by air pressure, made it possible to control the diameter of the casing at will, and make it uniform throughout the entire length.

"This is a very important feature in the sausage industry and is something which has never been realized in the manufacture of animal casings," says the report.

"The thickness is controlled mechanically and for a casing one inch in diameter, which is the same as the best sheep casing, the film employed is about 0.0006 inch in thickness."

"For the average Wiener the cellulose casing weighs less than 0.20 gram and comprises about 0.4 per cent of the total weight, which is less than the crude fiber content of many of our common foods."

Reindeer Thrive in U. S.,

Herders Have Discovered

Anchorage, Alaska.—Experiments made in Alaska during last summer prove that reindeer do not necessarily require moss and lichen for food. This discovery eventually will lead to radical changes in the industry and make it possible to raise deer in Washington, Montana, Minnesota, Wisconsin and possibly Maine.

For years it was believed reindeer could not thrive except on the tundra or swamp herbage, but in the long drive of 5,000 reindeer from Nome to Cantwell, near Mount McKinley, it was noticed the animals fed exclusively on fireweed, coarse grass and other vegetable matter.

Where this rough vegetation grows profusely, as in the northern tier of states, reindeer should flourish, experienced herders declare.

In the new location on the Alaska railroad the big herd will have both its native moss and the herbage. It is expected attempts will be made to teach the deer to like the taste of hay and ensilage.

Criticizes Eating

Washington.—Eating has fallen into a very low state in America, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, pure-food expert, declares. "It is too standardized and isn't engaged in with leisure and sociability," he said.

Prefers Prison

Milwaukee.—Lonely outside prison walls, Michael J. Harris is going to spend the rest of his life among his friends, the old-timers inside. Paroled in 1916, he insisted upon returning "home."

PAST MIXING OF CONCRETE WAS FAULTY

Less Water and Coarser Aggregate Increases Strength of Whole Mass.

Concrete has been mixed all wrong in the past.

One hundred thousand experiments have shown that it is the amount of water used to a sack of cement that determines the strength of the finished concrete. It has been found that the less water used in mixing, the stronger the finished concrete will be, says H. P. Twitchell, extension specialist in agricultural engineering at the Ohio State university.

Now the best concrete is made with less mixing water, by using a coarser aggregate which gives the final product more volume by mixing it longer to get all the particles of aggregate covered with cement. Finally it is left to cure about three weeks. In this way the strength of concrete has been increased 115 per cent.

Experiments show that six and three-fourths gallons of water to a sack of cement will give a concrete that has a crushing limit of 2000 pounds per square inch. Concrete of this strength is sufficient for any farm use Mr. Twitchell observes.

The old method was to mix the aggregate dry with the cement and then thin with water. By the new method the water and the cement are mixed first and the aggregate added until the concrete is thick enough. Add aggregate as long as the concrete can be worked.

The entire mixture must be mixed for at least a minute and a half to get the desired strength of 2000 pounds a square inch.

FUNERAL OF MISS STEVENSON.

The funeral of Miss Martha Moorhead Stevenson was held from her late home in Park Place Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Richard Watt and Rev. E. S. Toensmeier officiated and Miss Helen Marion sang "Abide With Me" and "Oh, Love That Will Not Let Me Go."

Miss Stevenson was a splendid type of Christian womanhood and was loved and respected by all who had the privilege of her acquaintance. She was of a retiring disposition, and in her unassuming way, exerted a great influence for good.

She was unselfish, extremely kind to the poor and her many benefactions were not known to the public. She obeyed the injunction, "let not your left hand know what your right hand doeth."

Her work on earth is ended, but the memory of her good deeds and kindly life will continue to be felt thru the coming years.

Miss Stevenson's eleven nephews were pallbearers: Ralph B. Stevenson, Harry G. Stevenson, J. Stanley Stevenson, J. Beryl Stevenson, Dr. Frank E. Stevenson, G. Bruce Stevenson, Richard H. Watt, Donald H. Watt, Howard N. Stevenson, Alex Stevenson Watt and Jean Moorhead Stevenson.

Those from out of town who attended the funeral were: Mrs. Frank Weaver, Mrs. Theodore Leonard, Mrs. John W. O'Connor, Miss Margaret Haviland and William B. Orr, of Columbus; Harry Orr, of Zanesville; Rev. and Mrs. Richard Watt and Miss Josephine Cannon, of Cleveland; John R. Hitson, of Pittsburgh; Dr. Frank E. Stevenson, of Cincinnati.

Historic Seventh Congress

On November 17, 1800, congress met for the first time in the newly erected capitol at Washington. It was the second session of the Seventh congress. The speaker of the house for this occasion was Nathaniel Macon, from South Carolina.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

A very pleasant and profitable meeting was held New Year's Eve by the Circleville W. C. T. U. at the Methodist church parlors. The devotions were in charge of the president, Mrs. Lulu Marion, who also led in prayer. A short business session followed, after which the program of the evening was taken up in charge of Mrs. May Crites.

The subject of the topic was "Health." Miss Phelps gave a very interesting leaflet on "Keeping Fit" adding to it from time to time comments from her experiences as nurse. There is now a movement on foot for one's best health to have a medical examination once a year. This might lead to more effective protection of health. The playground was spoken of as a splendid asset to health when properly supervised.

Mrs. O. E. Baumgarner followed with a paper on "The Adequate Diet" which was very interesting.

Another leaflet "Diet and Elimination" followed given by Mrs. Lucy B. Price on the proper way to keep the body perfectly fit thru rigid elimination.

The last paper of the evening was given by Mrs. Bessie Long, her subject "Obesity and its Cures." There are four ways to take off superfluous fat; first milk cure, fruit, reduction of food cure, and complete fasting. This last should never be attempted only under medical advice.

Interesting discussions followed each paper especially the latter one as many were interested in too "much fat when past forty."

The closing song was "Character," written by Edgar A. Guest, followed by W. T. C. U. benediction.

Delicious refreshments of sandwiches, potato chips, pickles and coffee were served in the social hour that followed. Altogether it was one of the meetings of the W. C. T. U. to be remembered.

BELLING PARTY RECALLED THE WEDDING DAY

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wardell Visited by Group of Fun-makers and Friends.

On January 5, 1888, at the home of the bride's parents on "Seven Oaks Farm" about five miles west of this city a young man and a maiden from two of the pioneer families of this county plighted their troth for "better or worse."

Fate decreed for the former and has lavishly bestowed upon them thirty-eight years of blessings since that wedding day. In commemoration of this thirty-eight years of wedded bliss, a few of their intimate friends, uninvited called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John (Jack) Wardell in South Pickaway street Wednesday evening and with bells, horns and other noise making paraphernalia, took them back to the memories of many years ago.

The hospitable "Jack" and his congenial wife not to be outdone by the merry makers, welcomed the company into their commodious home and after congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy future, treated their guests with a most delectable lunch, fruits and candies. The evening will long be remembered by Mr. and Mrs. Wardell and the small company that went to pay honor to this worthy and highly respected couple. The self invited guest list was made up of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Crist, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sensenbrenner, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Leist Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Leist, Mr. and Mrs. William Madden, Mrs. John L. Heise, Mrs. John Ahn and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hummel.

Mr. Wardell was one of Pickaway county's leading agriculturalists from the time of his marriage until years ago when he became field manager for the Winer Canning company of this city, which position he still holds.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wardell are active members of Trinity Lutheran church and the organizations there-with connected, and always have been leading factors in the communities in which they have resided. We are sure that all their many friends will join in wishing them many more years of health and happiness.

Postman's Long Walk

A presentation has been made to a postman named Mr. Joseph Simmons, of Church street, Ellesmere, Shropshire, England, in recognition of his 47½ years of service. In the course of his service as a postman he has walked 157,148 miles, equal to six times round the earth, and cycled 165,000 miles. The total mileage is 322,148.

MOON WOULD SHINE
IN WAR OF WORLDS

Low Lunar Gravity Would Increase Gun Range.

Washington.—If men from the earth were ever able to reach the moon, by the methods of Jules Verne or H. G. Wells, they would engage in warfare in a way unprecedented on the earth, for the ordinary 75-millimeter field gun would shoot three times as far there as did the German long range gun that bombarded Paris during the war.

Though the range of the 75 is about 13,000 yards on the earth, on the moon this would be about 250 miles. Dr. Fred E. Wright petrologist of the geophysical laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, said in a lecture.

Could Fire 3,400 Miles.

With the long-range gun that bombarded Paris from a point about seventy miles away, and had a muzzle velocity of about a mile a second, the lunar gunner could fire nearly half way around the moon, 3,400 miles. If the gun were pointed directly upward its shell would reach a height of a thousand miles above the lunar surface. At a muzzle velocity of a little less than a mile and a half a second, which is not beyond the realms of possibility, the projectile could be fired completely off the moon, at the earth or some other planet if desired. For a projectile to leave the earth it would have to be fired at a velocity of eighteen miles per second, or at nearly seven miles a second if the earth had no atmosphere.

Doctor Wright has made these studies of the diminished force of gravity and lack of atmosphere on the moon's surface in connection with the work of a Carnegie Institution committee of astronomers, mathematicians and geologists who are collaborating in an effort to learn about the earth's satellite.

"The geologist, accustomed as he is to working with conditions as they exist on the earth's surface, finds himself in a different kind of world when he studies the moon," said Doctor Wright. "The force of gravity to which he is accustomed being so much less, many phenomena would be different. For example, volcanoes on the earth throw rocks only a short distance, so that they often fall back into the crater from which they came. But moon volcanoes would throw material much farther. The result would be that the inside floor of the volcanic craters would be lower than the outer surface, just the opposite of the earth's volcanic conditions. Also the craters would be much larger than any on the earth. Telescopic observation shows that both of these conditions actually occur.

"Another point of marked difference is the lack of erosion forms on the moon. While so many of the earth's surface features are the result of weathering by wind and water, the moon is without atmosphere and moisture and these forms are absent."

Measures Gravity on Earth.

Doctor Wright has also been investigating the force of gravity of the earth and is developing a new form of apparatus for measuring its intensity. The standard way of doing it is with a very accurate pendulum, but the method is complicated and a week or more is required to set up the apparatus at any one place and make the readings. The new instrument, which measures the twisting of a spiral tungsten spring due to the earth's attraction, gives promise of permitting readings comparable in accuracy with the pendulum to be made in a few hours.

Yakalos, New Stock Breed,
May Solve Meat Problem

Wainwright, Alta.—When the world hangs out the "Standing Room Only" sign the problem of meat supply may be solved by a new breed of live stock called "yakalos" being developed in the national park at Wainwright by crossing the buffaloes with yaks.

"Yakalos" combine the meat-producing qualities of the yak with the foraging characteristics of the buffalo, according to G. B. Rothwell, director of the animal husbandry division of the Department of Agriculture. The new animals breed true to type, he said, and have proved more adaptable than "cattalo" evolved several years ago by crossing buffalo with domestic cattle.

The meat of yakalos is said to be almost identical with beef aside from being finer grained. The animals are hardy, can forage for themselves, are capable of wintering in the open, and are resistant to many of the common diseases of domestic cattle.

Buffalo in the government herd at Wainwright park have increased so rapidly that 2,000 young animals were shipped north last spring to a wild bison preserve on the Slave river. The herd at Wainwright, which is the center of a fertile farming area, now numbers 8,000.

AMUSEMENTS

Leave it to Bebe Daniels to burst forth with something new! Paramount's apt comedienne, as dainty and charming as ever, is with us again—this time with a comedy that should win an honorary degree.

That's the reaction one gets from her latest production, "The Campus Flirt" at the Met theater.

Bebe's story concerns itself with the activities of a college girl who "high hats" everyone failing to come up to her own ridiculous standard. The girl's subsequent treatment at the hands of her fellow students provides one with a laugh each second.

How she defeats Charlie Paddock, "world's fastest human," playing a featured role; how she refuses to "walk home" from a boat ride, and any of a hundred other situations, will keep you in hysterics. El Brendel's inimitable cavorting with Minnie, his pet mouse, is a comedy classic. James Hall, the third featured player, makes a creditable screen bow. "The Campus Flirt" directed by Clarence Badger, sparkles with genuine campus atmosphere. Photographed at the University of California, its track meet scenes made members of the audience stand right up in their seats.

The titles, works of art in themselves, were written by Rube Goldberg.

x HARTMAN THEATER. x x x x x x x x x

The coming to the Hartman theater, Columbus, on Monday, January 10, of "The Vagabond King" accredited the most thrilling of all musical plays for a one-week engagement, will unquestionably interest many music-lovers and theater goers in this community. This production, which calls for a cast of one hundred and twenty-five people but recently closed its New York engagement after a run of five hundred and sixty-seven performances — a record of which, it is believed, will stand for a long time.

As most people know who keep in average touch with important theatrical affairs, "The Vagabond King" is based on the beloved Justin Huntley McCarthy drama, "If I Were King" so successfully and brilliantly played by E. H. Sothern some twenty-five years back. And now, they have taken the play out of the Sothern repertoire and fashioned it into a lovely and glamorous romance in four acts and seven scenes, the latter depicting Old Paris during the unholy reign of Louis XI, 15th century. Rudolf Friml, the young Bohemian composer of the scores of "Rose Marie" "Firefly," "Katinka" and other popular successes, provided the lyrical setting for "The Vagabond King" and wrote what eminent music authorities agree is his greatest light opera. The score abounds in immense choruses, the now-famous "Song of the Vagabonds" being acclaimed the most thunderous ensemble ever composed for the stage. Other delightful song hits the play include "Only a Rose," "Love Me Tonight," "Tomorrow," "A Flagon of Wine," (done by 30 male chorus) and "Huguet's Waltz." A beautiful corps de ballet and an orchestra of thirty are other noteworthy features of "The Vagabond King."

There will be matinees at the Hartman on Wednesday and Saturday and the theater management announces that mail orders for this extraordinary attraction, sent in from this place, will have special attention.

Long Association of Storks and Babies

Out of old superstitions about birds arose the still current association of storks and babies. The white stork of the Old world has very pronounced migratory habits. It spends its summers in Holland, Germany or Denmark, and its winters in Egypt, the storks' Palm beach, Deauville or Riviera. Home to Mr. Stork is that high-fung chimney nest of sticks in Europe, where he takes a mate and where the young are raised, says a writer in the Kansas City Times.

He returns every season to the same haunts, and with him he brings his now mature offspring. Old nests are retentive, new ones constructed when necessary. The inhabitants of a house chosen by a stork are looked upon with envy by the neighbors and considered lucky, indeed. Out of this superstition later developed the belief that a baby would be brought to the house whose chimney was occupied by a stork.

In the same way arose the superstition about birds entering a house. Rural American and peasant Europe still maintain that it is a bad omen—a harbinger of death—if a winged creature enters, unbidden, into a home. The fact that a number of deaths from perfectly natural causes occurred after the visits of chimney swallows was taken as sure proof that death stalked behind these feathered creatures.

Honesty is the best policy, even tho it is the most expensive.

MORE THE BETTER!

Columbia, Mo.—One date a week for college men is advised by Prof. Jesse E. Wrench, of the History Department of the University of Missouri. And Prof. Wrench believes the date should be with a different girl each week rather than the same one.

"The wider a man's friendship with girls the better it will be for him," Prof. Wrench told the Campus Problems Club. "The idea of picking one girl and sticking with her is all right sometimes, and, if the right choice is made at first, the marriage probably will be a success. But many times the wrong choice is made and an unsuccessful marriage results."

In support of his suggestion that men play the field in their courtship days, Prof. Wrench pointed out that the average man in his home meets but one type of woman, his mother and his sister. He cannot tell which type is best suited for a life companionship with him unless he has a wide acquaintance among women.

"Today a similar degree of intelligence is more important than a similarity of tastes," said Prof. Wrench. "And a college education will cultivate appreciation and help to keep the man and woman from getting bored with each other."

Strong Combination

With Gene Tunney

The Girl at the Wheel

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

TOM CARR was a hustling American, but it took more than a pusher from Yankeealand to get in to London on that morning after the big strike started.

It wasn't his entire business career that depended on his getting to the city on that Wednesday morning, but mighty near it. His need for getting in was acute, since it involved either the loss or gain of a big contract.

Carr could have walked the eighteen miles easily—in a day. Somewhere in France he had done double that—but now he was hampered by a leg that couldn't quite do its pre-war mileage.

Business men and girls, determined to get in to town, were clinging like flies to the scant few trains that had gone in from Snarebrook. Lorries, taxis, wagons—all were filled to overflowing with their laughing human cargo.

Carr braced his shoulders and determined to stop every vehicle going Londonward until he should be squeezed into one. The quickly painted signs amused him. "Going East Cheap Way," "Going Monument Way," "All Aboard for Holborn District," and many "Full Up" signs met his glance. There were too many of the latter to suit Carr and in desperation he finally hailed one already well packed that was going Strand way. It was a private motor.

Perhaps it was because the driver was a girl and her sympathy for a slightly lame man asserted itself. Anyway she drew alongside Carr.

It was a tight squeeze, but the crowd already packed in made room for one more and Tom Carr breathed a sigh of relief.

Only a bomb or two could dislodge him now or prevent him getting in to secure that contract. With mind intent on his business, he still had time to notice the girl at the wheel who drove with so steady a nerve through the worst traffic jams he had ever witnessed. All that he could see of her beneath the brim of her powder-blue hat was softly feminine.

Carr fell to wondering how he could repay this girl for helping him in his emergency. Hers was one of the "free lift" cars and to offer fare would be to insult the owner.

As they drew into Holborn, Carr got out and slipped swiftly into one of the many shops. Traffic was more slowly conducted than the movements of a snail. He had no difficulty catching the dull red Austin as it crawled along with the rest.

Quickly, so that she could not protest, he tossed into the car a bulky package, then with a wave of the hand and sincere thanks for the lift Carr went his way.

He remained in town, keeping on the job until he put through the big contract, then sailed on Saturday back to New York.

And often during moments of rest he gave himself over to memories of the girl who had driven him in to London, and wondered in just what spirit she had opened the magnificent box of candy he had given her.

As a matter of fact, Alice Larkin had opened the box with great anticipation, which gave place to a little shriek of joy when she saw the exquisite flaxen-haired doll surmounting an exquisite box of candy. She recalled vaguely the clean-cut young man with a slight limp and wished she had had a word or two of conversation with him. Then one day, many weeks later, she saw an item in the newspaper that interested her more than all. This was short and to the point. It was in the Personal column of all the papers.

"Will lady who drove lame man from Snarebrook to Holbrook Circus during strike please phone Wanstead 2448?"

Alice flushed as she read it and showed it to her father.

"Isn't that funny?" she questioned.

"I wonder if I should telephone him?" She glanced at her father and saw amusement in his eyes as well as consent.

"So long as you meet him here—in your own home—it is quite all right," he said.

And when the lame man and the flaxen-haired girl were made known to each other over the wire, Carr asked quickly, "Are you married—or anything like that?" "I'm not," he added.

Alice laughed. She considered it rather thoughtful of him to let her know at the start that she would not be playing with fire, that there was no real reason why friendship should not carry on.

"Fine," returned Carr, upon hearing that she was not matrimonially involved. "Can I meet you and tell you about all the good things that have happened to me since you were so kind? I should have lost much—if I failed to get in that city. I owe a lot to you and want to tell you all about it."

"And I must thank you in person for the lovely—"

"Make it soon—I'll come around his evening—if I may?"

"You may," said Alice, and it was a bit of a pity that Carr missed the lovely color. "Or better still—come to tea—now."

Being a hustling American, Carr lost no time.

TOM TRAINER ON HONOR ROLL OF RAILROAD

Courteous, Efficient Official Retires After Forty Years of Service.

The Pennsylvania News of January 1, had the following in reference to Thomas S. Trainer, of Zanesville, and who is well and favorably known to many of our people:

"Thomas S. Trainer, one of the best known freight traffic officials on the western region, has reached the age of 'three score and ten' and therefore takes his place on the Pennsylvania railroad's pension roll of honor on January 1.

"Mr. Trainer has been division freight agent at Zanesville, Ohio, since July 1, 1911, and with the exception of five years, when his headquarters were in Columbus, Ohio, Mr. Trainer's service has been in Zanesville.

"He entered the service of the old Cincinnati & Muskingum Valley railroad, now the Zanesville branch of the Pennsylvania, on July 1, 1887, and in 1890, was appointed soliciting agent of the Star Union line. He was made live stock agent of the C. & M. V., in 1893, performing all of these duties at one time.

"Mr. Trainer was made agent of the Star Union Line, a Pennsylvania subsidiary in 1903, with headquarters in Columbus, but returned to Zanesville in 1909, as general freight and ticket agent. He was made division freight agent in 1911. In commenting upon Mr. Trainer's retirement a newspaper in Circleville, Ohio, and also one of Zanesville, Ohio, recently published articles, in part as follows:

"The retired list of the Pennsylvania and other big railway corporations, is a gentle reminder that we are all growing older, especially when we hear of old-time friends being eligible to be retired from service therefrom. One more official of the 'Sheepskin' branch of the Pennsy will be retired from the service on or about December 31, namely Tom S. Trainer, the accommodating division freight agent who is well and favorably known by the people along the line of the branch, having succeeded the late Captain Wilkinson.

"In the early days of Mr. Trainer's connection with the corporation Bob Taggart, Samuel Greer and L. W. Buckmaster were passenger conductors and 'Jap' Wilkins, Ferman Brooks and 'Pop' Zentmire were passenger engineers. Those were the good old days when everybody between Zanesville and Morrowtown traveled to the Queen City of the West and took a trip over the 'Rhine.'

"On one occasion Mr. Trainer personally conducted a Sunday school excursion out of Williamsport, bound for the Zoo. When the train arrived at Cincinnati, they were met by a little German band. Mr. Trainer and the minister led the procession and the band played as marches. 'Just Tell Them That You Saw Me' and when they struck Fountain Square, 'There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight.'

"The music was excellent and everything would have been 'glorious' if it had not been for a gang of Pennsy attaches, who had gathered on the square and were cheering for Trainer when the procession passed.

"If Mr. Trainer would keep 'smiling' thru the rest of his life, on this little old foot-stool, we suggest that he keeps right on chasing prospects on this old route, on the 'Sheepskin' branch of the Pennsy, as old friends are the best friends when you get 'high' onto three score and ten."

"Fellow freight traffic officials recently gave Mr. Trainer a gold watch and chain, in token of the high regard in which he is held."

W. E. Hilyard, local agent; J. S. Varney, agent at Williamsport; J. A. Miller and Rolland P. Heiskell and E. H. Howard, of the local office, attended a farewell banquet tendered Mr. Trainer at Zanesville.

Tell-Tale Walls

It is said that Chinese families at one time commemorated the deaths of their relatives by putting up a strip of wall paper every time a death occurred. Families with the largest number of dead relations naturally possessed the greatest quantity of wall paper on the walls and ceilings of their homes.

Cause of Double Joints

Double-jointedness is caused by loose ligaments around the joints. People possessing such ligaments have a wider latitude of movement around the joints than most people and can twist themselves into positions which would not be possible for an ordinary person.
